

Univeristy of Illinois Writing Project
Creating Portfolios
30-Jun-09
Patrick W. Berry

In each subcategory, you can have pages that break things down down further. You might want to group your select writings for example by topic. You may want to break your demonstration down into categories: an introduction; your handouts; and your reflection; and so on.

Next, think about what are the items you need on every page. You will need a menu with links to the five pages above. You will more than likely want to have a few links on every page: a link to the uiwp main blog; a link to your uiwp blog; a link to the uiwp site. Many of you will need more than this. But we'll use this as start for our exercise.

So, today, we'll create a mock portfolio. We'll create the following five pages: index.html; writings.html; demo.html; readings.html; and media.html.